NEWS FLASH

NOVEMBER 9, 2009

If you have an American Express card of any kind, you need to know about a new e-mail fraud. Dan received an e-mail from:

“American Express [AmericanExpress@welcome.aexp.com]”.

The e-mail gave his full name, the last 6 digits of Dan’s card number, the exact balance due on his last statement, and the payment due date, with a headline stating that payment has not yet been received. Instructions followed to click one of several links.

American Express has confirmed that this e-mail is phony and the links should not be clicked. American Express also stated that phony e-mails are also coming from:

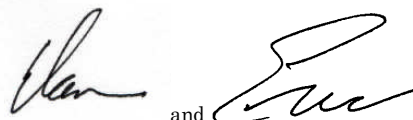

AmericanExpress@email2.americanexpress.com and americanExpress@email.americanexpress.com

If you receive one of these e-mails, do not open it, do not click any links. Forward the e-mail to Spoofer@americanexpress.com. American Express has launched a full investigation.
